Mike Beebe has over 25 years experience building the capacity and leadership skills of individuals, organizations, and community groups that are working for positive social changes in their communities.

Mike's early community change work included directing TEEN LINK, a crisis hotline for youth answered by youth, managing JustServe AmeriCorps, a violence prevention program, and serving as Board Chairperson for COLAGE, a national organization advocating for the rights of LGBT families. His early community change work taught him the importance of leadership development as a crucial part of any organization, business, or community group's efforts to make positive changes in the community. With this experience, Mike launched Leadership for Change Training & Consulting in 2004. Since then, he has worked with thousands of individuals and organizations to build their leadership skills to work for a "more just tomorrow."

His services include coaching, facilitation, curriculum development and organizational change consulting. He also offers training in leadership skills, facilitation skills and diversity/equity.

Mike believes strongly in collaborating with skilled colleagues to provide training and consulting services to create the greatest impact. In that spirit, he is part of a number of powerful training teams including F.A.C.E. Consulting Collaborative, Gracious Space Institute, and ToP Trainers Network.

While Mike's career started in the non-profit sector, he now works with clients across sectors including non-profits, government agencies (city, county, state and federal) and corporations.
